According to several studies, dogs can helpowners need less medical visits and increase life expectancy. People who are attenuated in their golden years will enjoy the benefits of owning a dog, including the company, emotional support and encouragement to remain physically active. When you are looking for your partner, it is important to consider your health and lifestyle to determine which breed of dog fits best in your home. Your well-being also plays a role in the fact that you can take care of the animal. Before you have a dog, learn the extraordinary breeds that make great friends for older adults. The company dogs for the elderly are often easy to cure. The main responsibilities of owning a dog include cleaning, bathroom, walk and organization of veterinary appointments. For some older adults, tasks can be more challenging, especially if they experience the decline of mobility, memory loss and other age-related issues. However, online platforms like Rover, Wag! and TaskCount offer services to help you take care of dogs. Photo Courtesy: FredFroese/E+/Getty Images Through Rover, you can hire people on foot or sit. Wag! provides similar services as well as dog training, socialization and virtual veterinary care. You can also send an ad with specific tasks on TaskCount for people to accept and complete. If you need food and supplies for pets, apps and websites like Amazon, Costco, Target and other stores can deliver them. These useful services make it easier for older adults to own dogs and take care of them. Now, let's examine some breeds of dogs that are excellent hairy companions for the elderly. If you â are looking for a dog that â quiet, rarely needs toiletting and loves the inside, a pug is perfect for you. This small dog prefers to sit on an armchair with its owner much more than to explore the outside. These animals are foolish, loyal and affectionate towards their guardians, making them emotional support dogs for the elderly. Photo Courtesy: Germana Marengo/EyeEm/Getty Images Pugs only needs play sessions and walks, so Don. 128;t require a lot of exercise. Although they rarely bark, they have the habit of snoring while they sleep. Pisin is one of their favorite activities. It's also important to note that pus are sensitive to extreme heat and cold conditions. Another problem is that animals are prone to obesity, so make sure to go slow with the treats. The bums are very smart, kind and loving~ great qualities if you se' are looking for an emotional support dog. The plates are also ideal for the elderly who want to exercise more, as these animals require daily walks forHappy and healthy. Best of all, there are three different sizes of poodles that you can choose from toy, miniature and standard. Photo Courtesy: kumikomini/E+/Getty Images Taking care of homeless people is quite easy, but they must be brushed every day to prevent their coats from becoming dull. Many owners keep these dogs226;ÂA coats cut by themselves or by visiting a licensed shearer each month or Known as a race of racing dogs, scavengers have become popular among older adults. These animals can help the elderly increase their levels of activity without overloading themselves. Levers only have to run for a short period of time, so you don't have to worry about spending too much time outdoors. Photo Courtesy: Meler/Moment/Getty Images When these dogs are indoors, they are couch potatoes that love to relax for most of the day. Many owners love their levy collectors to be calm, quiet, obedient and quick learners. When it comes to governing, the levys need very little care, too. Like a breed of large dogs, scavengers weigh between 65 and 70 pounds. Sounds heavy, doesn't it? Surprisingly, scavengers are easy to handle and train. Compared to other breeds, these large dogs need more caloric food, so make sure you feed them with high quality dog food. Looking for a loving, adaptable dog? The Cavalier is a small dog who loves to cuddle, making it an ideal emotional support dog for the elderly. They also agree with adults, children and other pets. The race is easy to train thanks to its high intelligence and desire to learn. Photo Courtesy: Amy Lane Photography/Moment/Getty Images With a weight between 13 and 18 kilos, these animals are easy to transport. Also taking care of the Cavalier's fur is not a problem, as it just needs a daily brushing and a bath occasionally. There are many positive aspects about the Horsemen, but bear in mind that this race tends to hunt things down. When the dog goes open, it will need a leash. Thanks to their highly trained nature, Labrador retrievers are great companions. Their friendly and extroverted personality also helps to comfort the elderly and allow these dogs to bond easily with the whole family and other pets. Moreover, these obedient animals are one of the best breeds of dogs for owners with anxiety. Photo Courtesy: Ariel Skelley/DigitalVision/Getty Images Although Labradors are easy, they are super active and require a lot of exercise, such as running and recovering. They make the best companions for the elderly who are also energetic. In addition, the laboratories have poured a large amount of fur, so prepare to vacuum and clean after them.
